

Here is Irene Franklin, vaudeville artist and creator of the song "Red Head," who was the chief entertainer at The New York Herald staff dinner, February 26. Her husband, Burton Green, was her accompanist.

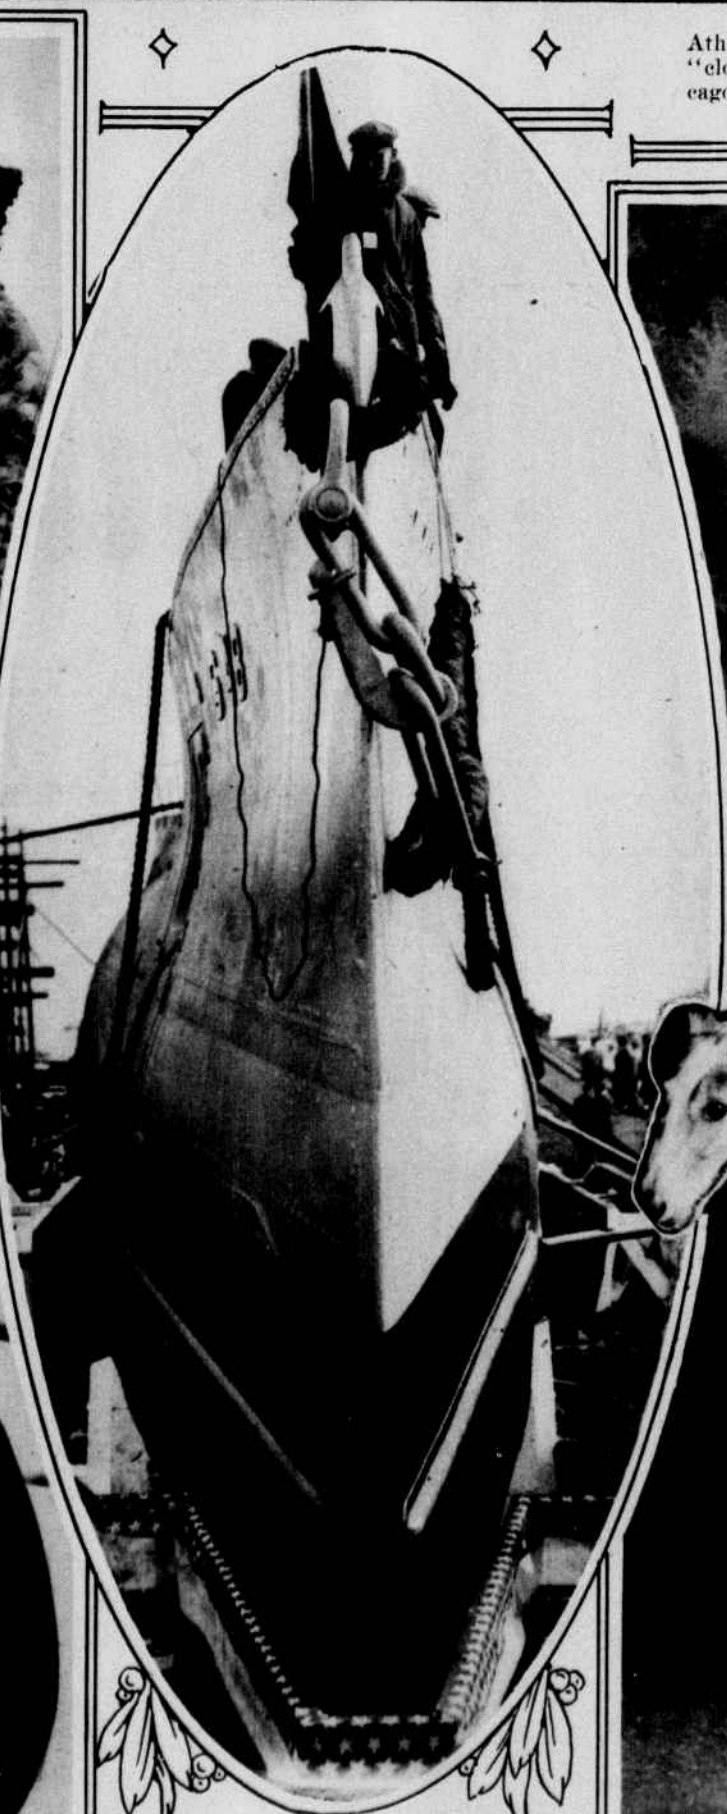

King Constantine of Greece and his Queen, photographed in Athens after their restoration to the throne. This new and exclusive "closeup" of the royal couple was taken by a camera man from Chicago. It is one of the best to reach the United States.
Copyright, International.

Lord and Lady Camoys with their children, the Honorable Sherman and the Honorable Nadine Stoner, photographed just before they sailed on the Aquitania. Lady Camoys was Miss Sherman, daughter of Mrs. William Watts Sherman of New York.
Copyright, Paul Thompson.

Sir Ernest Shackleton, famous explorer (at left), with his hostess and host, Lady Eaton and Sir John C. Eaton, just before they sailed for England on the Aquitania.
Copyright, Paul Thompson.

This is what a submarine really looks like. It is the S-48 just before it was launched at Bridgeport, Conn., last week. Mrs. James C. Germaine (Princess Tocomas) was sponsor for the vessel and used a bottle of real champagne in naming her.
Underwood & Underwood.

Miss Consuelo Bettini and her prize Russian wolfhound, Prince Igor. She is the daughter of Lieutenant and Mrs. Gianni Bettini and has lived most of her life in Rome and Paris. Her mother was Miss Daisy Abbott of New York.
Campbell Studios.